MYSTERY OF SMELL.

PROBLEMS AWAITING THE ATTENTION OF SCIENTIFIC MEN.

Some of the Remarkable Things Noticeable About Various Odors—Evidences of the Remarkable Development of the Sense of Smell.

One subject which in this scientific ago has not been made the matter of thorough scientific investigation is the sense of smell. Our knowledge of the science of odors remains about where it was 50 years ago, although we have learned so much about light, heat and sound. The old imperfect classification of smells into "pungent, saline and saccharine" still remains. Indeed, about all that most of us know is that some smells are agreeable and some decidedly the reverse. There is no standard of smell, no unit odor established as a base of comparison. We do not know when one smell is twice as strong as another. As a famous chemist said, "Quantitative analysis has not yet been applied to the skunk."

A writer in The Independent does, indeed, say that on an examination of several thousand flowers he found that there was a connection between color and perfume. He finds that of white flowers 14 per cent gave out agreeable odors; of gray ones, 11 per cent; of red, a little over 8 per cent; of yellow, a little over 6 per cent; of blue, 4 per cent, and of green, only 2 per cent. But, further, yellow flowers contain the largest number with a disagreeable odor, and the white the next largest. But this analysis is vitiated by the fact that a perfume agreeable to one person may be sickening to another.

There is no æsthetic standard of smells, and there are but few which all declare to be delightful. An English manufacturer of perfume asserts that he is able to combine odors so as to produce a certain effect and talks of a perfume scale, but this seems rather commercial than scientific. If he could really produce an odor which everybody would recognize by the combination of different smell elements, the foundation of a science of smell would be laid.

One remarkable thing about odor is that the emission of it does not appreciably diminish the mass of the body from which it is given off. A grain of musk may fill a room with odor for years and weigh as much at the end of the time as it did at the beginning. Its weight must have been diminished, for it is impossible to believe that an effect on our organs of sense can be produced without an impact of material particles from a source of energy, but the amount of matter dissipated is infinitesimal in the case of an odorous body.

The sense of smell is apparently universal, but stronger in animals than in men. The lowest orders smell with their mouths, insects smell with their hairs, fishes smell in water, and the acuteness of the power of smell in dogs and in savages is well known. Humboldt says that Peruvian Indians could tell in the darkest night whether the person approaching was a European, a negro or an American Indian. In those deprived of the other senses the power of analyzing odors is sometimes abnormally developed.

The Scotch boy James Mitchell, a blind, deaf mute, could distinguish the individuals in a room into which he was led. John Mossman, a deaf mute at Parkersburg, W. Va., was able to locate oil wells with the certainty that a setter finds partridges. His nose brought him a fortune of $500,000 as fees for professional smelling. It is strange that no one has trained a dog to point petroleum. Possibly a dog might be taught to "stand" a nugget of gold in the frozen soil of Alaska, as pigs find truffles in Perigord, for metals have a characteristic smell. It is probable that everything gives off a characteristic effluvium, though our sense is not delicate enough to detect the subtler ones.

Some gases, like hydrogen, have no odor; others, like chlorine and the product of the Hartford Gas company, have a very perceptible one. There is a general idea that a body must possess a molecular weight 15 times as great as that of hydrogen before it can affect the olfactory nerves of human beings, but even that needs confirmation. We frequently confound taste and smell, and it is said that no one can distinguish an onion from an apple by taste alone.

Some odors cling to the surface of things, as the odor of game, which rarely rises much above the ground; others are rapidly diffused through the air. Why is this? No one knows. One of the most singular things about the sense of smell is that it is not subject to illusions. Sight may be deceived. One may imagine he sees things which are not before him; he may hear a roaring in his ears when there is no sound, but it is said that even the insane are not subject to olfactory delusions. There are no ghost smells. If this is true, what is the reason, what is the explanation, of the phenomenon? Again, why are the earth and fields so much more fragrant in the morning than at noon, when, on the other hand, the strength of most odors is increased by heat?

The scientific men ought at least to "make a bluff" at some of these problems. As it is, here is an original sense of power of perception of the utmost refinement, older, probably, than the sense of sight, a power for the exercise of which we use a complicated mechanical and nervous mechanism, the nature and modus operandi of which are as much a matter of conjecture as were those of the senses of sight and smell 1,000 years ago. Evidently science has not discovered everything yet.—Hartford Courant.

Nothing New.

"No," said the long haired poet, "I cannot write at all times. The divine afflatus only urges my pen at certain inspired moments."

"I see," said the busy editor; "same old plea—temporary insanity."—New York Journal.

The man who has been struck by a locomotive and is picked up alive and carried on by the cow-catcher has had a miraculous escape. The man who through neglect has sacrificed his health and wrecked his body, and through the merits of a medicine is picked up alive and restored to health has had an almost equally wonderful experience. There are thousands of men, who have for years overworked themselves to the neglect of their health, and then when utterly wrecked in body and shattered in nerve have been picked up and restored to health by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It is a marvelous remedy that corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver, and fills the blood with the life-giving elements that build new flesh and muscle. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption and is a specific for diseases due to disorders of the digestion or imperfect nutrition. Druggists sell it.

"Myself and wife," writes Mr. H. G. Adams, of Truers Station, Henry Co., Ky., "have taken five bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.' The medicines are curing both of us. We can't say too much for them or for you. My wife persuaded me to quit the doctor here and try one bottle of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I did so, and I thank God for it. I have recommended it highly to many of my neighbors. I told them that if it did not do them one dollar's worth of good that I would pay for it.

"I will give you a little statement of my own case. I was enervated, could hardly get up in the morning, never got a whole night's sleep, was short of breath, had a tight feeling in the stomach, and was restless. I would throw up my food, and had numerous other ailments which I have not time to write about now. I now feel better and look better than ever before in my life."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the surest, safest, quickest cure for constipation. They never gripe. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Substitutes are sometimes dangerous, and always cause discomfort.

THE CARSON MINT APPROPRIATION.

The Congressional Record contains a report of the proceedings had in the House of Representatives on the Legislative and Executive appropriation bill. The bill, as reported by the committee, made no appropriation whatever for the Carson Mint not even for the pay of watchmen. Mr. Newlands by using his persuasive powers, obtained permission of Mr. Bingham, who had charge of the bill, to offer an amendment, which, with his remarks in support of the same, appears in the Record. What does not appear in the Record, however, but which is furnished the JOURNAL by a spectator, who was in the gallery, is the hostility of the Republican leaders to an appropriation for the Carson Mint. Mr. Newlands demanded tellers and he and Mr. Cannon were designated to count the votes, as the members filed between them, the House being in Committee of the Whole. Speaker Reed, who seldom condescends to vote, made himself conspicuous on this occasion and registered a "no" against the amendment as an indication of the attitude of the ultra gold wing of the Republican party toward the Carson Mint. Dingley, Cannon, Payne, Johnson and other gold men followed the example of Reed, as might be expected, but Loud and Barham of California surprised the advocates of the amendment by following in the wake of Speaker Reed. They were supposed to favor western interests and being from an adjoining State their action indicated the effectiveness of the party lash in keeping members in line. However the fight was won and the amendment carried in committee of the whole by a vote of 83 to 77, the Democrats and Silver men generally voting for the amendment.

The action of the Committee of the Whole on the bill is not final. The bill will now be reported back to the House with the amendment and after the holidays the House will take it up. As the Speaker and Republican leaders generally are opposed to making an appropriation for the Carson Mint and the party has a clear majority of fifty in the House it is feared that the amendment will be defeated. The only hope lies in the personal popularity of Mr. Newlands, who has many friends among the Republicans, some of whom may refrain from voting out of personal consideration for the member from Nevada, but it is doubtful even with such negative assistance, if the party policy of the Republicans can be defeated.

Should Mr. Newlands' amendment be defeated in the House the Carson Mint will close unless the Senate makes a similar amendment to the bill and will not recede from its action. The policy of the gold trust, which controls the Administration, is to treat the silver producing states as conquered provinces and unless the Senate interposes with a firm hand, Nevada will not be included in the appropriation bill. The next Congress will, beyond reasonable doubt, have a majority that will be more favorably disposed toward silver and an American financial policy and in which Mr. Reed will not exercise despotic powers.

SILVER FOR EUROPE.

Last Saturday the Lucanie and Normandie steamships, which sailed from New York for European ports, took 815,000 ounces of fine silver consigned to London and Paris. This silver they purchased, thanks to our gold Administration, for less than sixty cents an ounce. They will coin it into money worth $1 33 an ounce, or considerable over twice the purchase price. The silver they must have at any price less than its coinage value, to renew their old coins. They do not purchase it because it is cheap, but for the simple reason that they must have it. They produce no silver and purchase the metal in the United States, which is the greatest silver producing nation in the world. Our obliging law makers, being controlled by the gold trust, do all in their power to depress the market value of silver, of which we are the greatest producer, and there are several persons even in Nevada who uphold their action.

The price of wheat this season advanced because of scant grain crops in other countries. What would the people think of an Administration and a Congress that would do all in their power by legislation to reduce the price of grain because there was a demand for it in Europe? Would not the people charge that the law-making power was subsidized by the European nations that wanted wheat, and would not the people have good grounds for so thinking? What is the difference between depressing the price of a metal for which there is a world wide demand, and of which we are the greatest producer, and depressing the price of a cereal for which there is great demand this year and of which we are a great producer? Is not the action of Congress as reprehensible in one case as it would be in the other? We protect certain industries by legislation and do all in our power by legislation to cripple others equally as legitimate as those that are encouraged. This is unjust to those engaged in silver mining and dependent upon it for support, and some day the people will rise in their might and so declare at the ballot box.

A PENSION has been granted to the widow of Knud Knudson, who died in the Civil War. The back pay amounts to over $4,000. Mrs. Knudson, the lady to whom the pension was granted, was never in the United States. This indicates the liberality of the Pension Bureau. It grants a pension to a woman who was never in the United States because her husband fought in the war which ended nearly thirty-three years ago.

Do Clocks Get Tired?

"Do clocks get tired?" said Mr. Billtops. "I imagine they do. I love to hear a clock tick. I suppose everybody does. We had a little clock that I used to keep in my own room. It stopped one day and I shook it up a little and it started on, but it soon stopped again, and after that it kept stopping, and sometimes it would take me ten minutes to shake it up so that it would go on and keep going. I suppose I spent on that clock as much time as would have paid for half a dozen clocks like it, and finally it stopped altogether and I gave it up and the little clock lay idle for months. I supposed that sooner or later we should throw it away, and I thought the only reason that we didn't was because we hate to throw anything away.

"But one day one of the children got hold of the clock and took the back off it to see what was the matter with it. You know what happens when children begin fooling with a clock. I never expected to hear the clock tick again, but I'm blessed if the shaver didn't make it go. What he did to it I don't know—nothing, I guess, except to oil it, and I suppose that was all it needed, or else it had simply tired and had wanted a rest, but it's going again now and ticking away like a good one."—New York Sun.

Two Anecdotes.

Who does not know the "copper horse" at Windsor—that equestrian statue at the end of the long walk, to which (and back again) the local flyman always offers to drive the tourist? The queen was entertaining a great man, who in the afternoon walked from the castle to Cumberland lodge. At dinner her majesty, full, as always, of gracious solicitude for the comfort of her guests, said, "I hope you were not tired by your long walk?" "Oh, not at all, thank you, ma'am. I got a lift as far back as the copper horse." "As far as what?" inquired her majesty, in evident astonishment. "Oh, the copper horse, at the end of the long walk." "That's not a copper horse. That's my grandfather."

Lord R., preaching at the French exhibition, implored his hearers to come and drink of the eau de vie.—Manchester Guardian.

THE Coroner's jury found that Mrs. Ciute came to her death in San Francisco on the 15th of December from cerebral hemorrhage caused by wounds inflicted by Albert Hoff. The verdict further charged Hoff with the crime of murder and he was held for trial without bail. Two witnesses testified that they had seen the coupling pin with which the unfortunate woman's skull was broken in Hoff's possession. Hoff, acting on the advice of his attorney, declined to take the stand and make a statement.

WITH KNIGHTLY COURTESY.

Sir Knight William Webster Entertains the Resident and Sojourning Knights Templar.

It is an old custom in the order of Knights Templar wherever a few of the members are gathered in a community to meet on Christmas morning at some appointed randezvous and there drink the health of the Most Eminent Commander, renew their pledges to each other as well as to practically demonstrate the divine precept on this day of all others of "peace on earth, good will to men."

The hour for the ceremony is promulgated, so that throughout the United States all Sir Knights, no matter where located or how situated, may act simultaneously. The place is agreed upon by resident Knights and the hand of welcome is extended to sojourning members in order that all may participate in the forms and usages prescribed by law.

For the Christmas day of 1897 the castle of Sir Knight William Webster was chosen as the randezvous and 9 o'clock A. M. by general promulgation, named as the hour of meeting. Accordingly, Sir Knights W. S. Bailey, J. B. McCullough, J. M. McCormack, Geo. H. Cunningham, T. K. Hymers, L. D. Folsom, Stewart Logan, A. C. May, E. R. Dodge, T. R. Wren, W. O. H. Martin, H. B. Maxson, Geo. H Thoma, B. F. Bobo, Alvaro Evans, Frank Sheldon and Samuel Unsworth met with the host of the occasion, Sir Knight Wm. Webster.

Promptly at the hour Sir Knight Samuel Unsworth, who acted as master of ceremonies, announced the purposes of the gathering, speaking of the occasion, its teachings and matters pertaining to the custom of thus meeting and renewing their fealty to each other in their efforts toward the upbuilding and betterment of their fellow men. He then proposed a toast to the Most Eminent Commandor, which was responded to in unison by all of the Sir Knights present. Toasts and responses followed in which the host and his family, also each Sir Knight and his family were remembered. An hour or two of general sociability ensued and after the compilments of the season and good wishes each for the other were heartily expressed, the gathering adjourned to meet next year by usual appointment.

The attendance of Knights was larger this year than at any previous similar occasion in Reno. Several other resident Knights were expected, but owing to absence from town or other pressing engagements they were compelled to send regrets.

The whole affair was an enjoyable one and served to illustrate that a little sunshine and kindly feeling distributed among our fellows smooths the rough places in life and makes the world seem better and brighter.

A NEW YEAR'S GREETING.

A Reno Business Man Sounds a Note of Alarm.

EDITOR JOURNAL—Trades people are becoming alarmed over the great amount of money being constantly sent away to Sacramento, San Francisco and even to points east of the Rockies by residents of the State. How can a merchant of a town expect patronage from his town's people when he does not in turn show any disposition to help his neighbor who is dealing in lines, some of which the merchant must have for himself or family. It does not follow what line of business or vocation a resident of the community may be in, whether farmer, live stock, tradesman, professional, host, laborer or capitalist; in the course of every day we have occasion to come in business contact with more or less of them aiding directly or indirectly in the general business interests of the community and receiving our quota of the benefits. But if we expect patronage from our neighbor and studiously refrain from giving any in return we are taking an advantage that is unjust and in a measure dishonorable.

If we do not expect to receive consideration or earn our living from the community in which we live, then we should go to other points, where conditions are more favorable and the inhabitants of a commonwealth are more loyal to each other. There is a growing disposition, in fact too much so, for everyone to try and fool the other fellow and he or she are simply laying plans to fool themselves eventually.

An old story that is very applicable to the existing conditions runs as follows:

Three brothers, who may be called A B and C, purchased a donkey. A worked the donkey the first day, but did not feed him, taking it for granted that as B would work him the second day, would, of course, feed him and that much would be saved and go into A's pocket, thereby taking advantage of the situation to beat his brother and the beast. B figured it out that A had fed the donkey the day before and that his brother C would feed him the next day, so he played cunning, as he thought, on his two brothers, and turned the hungry animal over to C. The latter concluded that as long as A and B had fed the beast the two previous days, the third day's feed could be saved, so he put him to work and shortly the beast laid down and died and the brothers were out the amount paidas well asthe animal.

So it is with all communities, "united they stand, divided they fall." Let there be a change in conditions. Help one another and it will soon be found that prices are as reasonable and goods can be bought as cheaply in Reno, freight added, as anywhere in these great United States.—Home Industry.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

At the Congregational Church.

The First Congregational Church christian services were well attended both morning and evening of Sunday last.

In the morning the Rev. F. Flawith preached from the following text: "And the word became flesh, and dwelt among us (and we beheld his glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father), full of grace and truth."—John I-14.

The speaker said we often talk about our word being our honor. There is more truth in this than would appear on the surface.

We would not have men accept our word as simply the consonant and vowel sounds which fall from our lips. Our word is in a great degree ourself, it is our will, our character. We realize the difficulty of comprehending and expressing our personality. It is well nigh impossible to put our highest thoughts and holiest feelings into any form of expression.

We are sure that there is more of our real self than our friends can see and more than we ourselves understand. We have deathless hopes that know no language.

Another difficulty in the way is the fact that we cannot imprison spiritual and eternal facts in temporal and variable forms of speech. The self we would shown unto others, is cramped in the feeble utterances of our lips.

We read the utterances of the prophets of old, and the words they used to utter their messages, seem stretched and bleeding, crowded with meaning beyond their capacity.

Never the less words bear the marks of moral struggle and character.

Within them you may feel divine impulses. Within them you may see something of the character of God. They are the will and the nature of God.

It is always so. Words bear the stamp of character, and they, in a measure, bring forth the moral cargo our souls carry. They are wrested from the very inmost life of man by the necessity of making himself known.

What we say of man we say of God, only in a more perfect sense, and the imperfection is on the side of our short measure of spiritual and moral compensation.

The finite cannot contain all of the infinite.

The word of God was the will, the nature, the self-expression of God. "The word was God," just as certain as the sun's rays are the sun; as truly, more truly, than your words are you

In "the fulness of time the word became flesh and dwelt among us." It is not for us to presume to know all about when would be "the fulness of time."

But we do know that truth can find no better way of fixing itself in the world, than by contrast. The speaker then went on to show how human life and nature had come down to the last dwindling point and how in the thickest darkness the ages have ever known, there came a light from the heavens

When John said, "The word was made flesh" and he practicaly said, "Here was God within the necessary comprehension of human understanding. Here was a complete expression of God's character; a revelation of what God is and has always been. A manifestation of God's will and purpose with respect to the life and character of man. Yes, Christ was a complete self-expression of God. God's heart and will was laid bare to the gaze of His children.

As a revelation there is everything in Christ which could satisfy man. In the glory and truth of the Christ life being born in us, we are finding our way home to God. We disfellowshipped God; but we were never cut off from his care and love. We have turned the word of God out of doors, but that word has kept on speaking to our affections and reason.

This Christmas time the Christ life can be born again in the Bethlehem of our souls. This, wherever it occurs, is as great a miracle as was wrought eighteen hundred years ago.

Let us not turn to the distractions of human opinion and theory about things which will never save us. In Jesus we may find a revelation of God's nature and will as may satisfy the deepest longings and the highest idols of our nature.

Let us live out this life according to our nature and degree. The best that is in us is the moral property of the race.

A Farewell to the Rev. and Mrs. Freeman.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. Sanders was ablaze with lights last evening it being the occasion of a farewell reception given to Rev. and Mrs. Freeman, the retiring pastor of the Baptist Church. Their many friends regret to have them leave for they have endeared themselves to their congregration and many neighbors.

Among the one hundred present were Pres. Stubbs, Rev. F. C. Lee and wife, Rev. Mr. Unsworth, Rev. Mr. Flawith and Rev. Mr. Magill.

All joined in voting Mr. and Mrs. Sanders most hospitable hosts in preparing such a nice collation for all present. The tables were decorated prettily and the most enjoyable time was had.

After musical selections by Miss McCullough and Mrs. Geo. Taylor and a recitation by Mrs. Shearer, Mr. Carter in a neat and touching speech presented Mr. Freeman with a purse as a Christmas offering. Mr. Freeman responded in his usual able manner bidding each to do and dare much for the Master and to endeavor to live a higher life. After Mr. Freeman's remarks all joined in singing that beautiful old hymn "Blest be the Tie that Binds our Heart in Christain Love." All joined in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Freeman God speed.

Very Likely the Steamboat Springs Robber.

Sheriff McInnis arrested a man yesterday answering the description of the robber who held up the parties at Steamboat on Saturday evening. He gave the name of Albert Wottom and claims to have come from Wyoming, but admits having been in Virginia on Friday and Saturday, returning here Monday. He said that he lived in Virginia seven or eight years ago, but don't know where the International Hotel is. Other questions asked by the Sheriff were answered in the same indefinite manner. He was seen by parties in the neighborhood of Steamboat. Upon being arrested yesterday he inquired of the Sheriff whether or not there had been a hold up. When searched he had on two or three suits of under clothing, two shirts, a sweater, vest and skin coat, two pair of pants and one pair of overalls and a pair of leggings. In fact he could make a half dozen changes of apparel in nearly as many minutes. Sheriff McInnis is satisfied that he has captured the Steamboat robber.

Dwarfing From Harsh Environment.

In Limousin there is a barren range of low hills which lies along the dividing line between the departments of Dordogne, Correze and Haute-Vienne, about half way between Perigueux and Limoges. The water courses show the location of these uplands. They extend over an area about 75 miles long and half as wide, wherein average human misery is most profound. Dense ignorance prevails. There is more illiteracy than in any other part of France. The contrast in stature, even with the low average of all the surrounding region, is clearly marked by the dark tint. There are sporadic bits of equal diminutiveness elsewhere to the south and west, but none is so extended or so extreme. Two-thirds of the men are below 5 feet 3 inches in height in some of the communes, and the women are three or more inches shorter even than this. One man in ten is below 4 feet 11 inches in stature.

This is not due to race, for several racial types are equally stunted in this way within the same area. It is primarily due to generations of subjection to a harsh climate, to a soil which is worthless for agriculture, to a steady diet of boiled chestnuts and stagnant water and to insanitary dwellings in the deep, narrow and damp valleys. Still further proof may be found to show that these people are not stunted by any hereditary influence, for it has been shown that children born here, but who migrate and grow up elsewhere, are normal in height, while those born elsewhere, but who are subject to this environment during the growing period of youth, are proportionately dwarfed.

STATE AND COUNTY

Delinquent Tax List,

For the Fiscal Year 1897.

OFFICE OF THE TREASURER AND EX-OFFICIO TAX RECEIVER,
WASHOE COUNTY, NEVADA,
December 24, A. D. 1897.

To the above-named delinquent tax-payers and to all owners of or claimants to the real estate and improvements thereon, or improvements when assessed separately, hereinbefore described, known or unknown, and on which the tax does not exceed three hundred dollars. You are hereby notified that under and by virtue of an Act of the Legislature of the State of Nevada, entitled "An Act to provide revenue for the support of the General Government of the State of Nevada," approved March 23d, 1891, Chapter XCIX, Statutes 1891, amended February 27, 1893, Chapter LI, Statutes 1893, I will sell

On the Third Monday in January

To-wit: The 17th day of said month, in front of the courthouse door of the county building, in Reno, Washoe county, Nevada, each of the described tracts or parcels of land, with the improvements thereon, and improvements when assessed separately, to recover the amount of tax and ten per cent delinquency, assessed to said defendants against said property for the fiscal year commencing January 1st, 1897, and ending December 31st, 1897, together with cost of publication of this notice, unless payment of said tax, delinquency and costs be paid to me prior to the hour of sale on said 17th day of January, 1898. The said sales will be made between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 5 o'clock P. M., to-wit: at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M., to the person taking the smallest quantity of property and paying the taxes and costs of the whole. Such sale is subject to redemption within six months after the date of sale by the payment of all such sums, with three per cent per month thereon from date of said sale until paid.

The above is a list of the names of persons to whom the property is assessed, a description of the property upon which the taxes are due and the amount of the tax that is due.

D. B. BOYD,
